MESSAGE GIVES PLANE POSITION AS MID OCEAN

Weather Favors Birdmen With Princess Mascot On Atlantic Try

(By Universal Service) LONDON, Aug. 31.—The Imperial Airways Company has informed the Westminster "Gazette" of the receipt of a message timed 9:30 p.m., stating that the St. Raphael was still flying. The whereabouts of the plane was not mentioned nor as the source of the message indicated in the Westminster "Gazette's" announcement.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Up to nine o'clock this evening no word was received from the airplane St. Raphael since it passed out over the Atlantic ocean towards Newfoundland at Calway, Ireland this afternoon.

PRINCESS CAR 00
Carrying the 63-year-old Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, financial "Angel" of the expedition, as passenger, and piloted by Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Lieut. F. W. Minchin, the St. Raphael left the airdrome at Upavon, Wiltshire, at 7:34 this morning for Ottawa.

On the difficult get-away the plane narrowly averted a catastrophe when, on account of the extremely heavy load, it barely cleared fences, trees and other obstructions at the end of the runway, but finally with a quick turn it nose upward and sailed away to the west.

FIRST TO CARRY WOMAN
This, the second westbound airplane attempt to cross the Atlantic since the ill-fated Nungesser-Coll flight, is the first expedition of the kind to ever carry a woman as a passenger.

FIRE DISTRICT EXTENSION IS REALTY TOPIC

Continuous Mud Stream Piled Up Behind Great Levees

Dredging operations in Richmond's inner harbor are progressing rapidly.

With the great levees thrown around the 15 acres of industrial lands fronting an immediate back of the inner harbor completed, the government dredgers are now spilling a continuous stream of mud and silt back of these bulkheads.

5 MONTHS WORK

There is about five months work to be done before the present operations are completed. This work is being done under a previous bond issue and with government assistance and represents an expenditure of some $500,000 of which Richmond has already contributed more than $150,000.

50 ACRES FILLED IN

Fifty acres of the seventy-three acres acquired by the Ford Motor Company for its Richmond plant site is being filled in behind levees 16 feet high. The present work contemplates channels 200 feet wide and 30-feet deep, with Richmond paying the maintenance costs of keeping the channels to the 30-foot depth as the approved project under the government is only 24-feet. However, the $690,000 harbor asks government approval of channels 32-feet deep and if approved by the Army Engineers means that the government will bear maintenance costs in the future to this depth.

Odell shouldered members of the police who tried to pacify the rivals. And there lies the story of the bitter rivalry, the fierce fighting and the torn shirts yesterday afternoon. The proceeds of the game tomorrow will go toward the building fund of the Richmond War Mothers Memorial.

Martinez "Predjudiced" Claim Of Local Man in Rum Trial

Basing his plea on the claim that he can not secure a fair and impartial trial in Martinez because of the "prejudice of residents of Martinez" and facing a jury that it he would be deprived of the benefit of a twenty years reputation in Richmond, Pete Bolat, Standard Oil Company employee, yesterday filed in the court of Justice of the Peace, Frank Glass a motion for change of venue to Richmond for his hearing on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Bolat, according to his petition, filed through Attorney O. D. Horner, feels that his foreign name and the fact that he is not a native of this country, laid before a jury here without his reputation in Richmond being known, would be prejudicial to him.

The charge against Bolat was filed in the court of Justice of the Peace Glass last January. Bolat has been at liberty on bond of $1000.

THE CONFERENCE CLOSES

The Geneva conference is closed and it has closed with a friendly feeling between the conferees, on the surface at least. The difficulties from the American standpoint have been well summed up by Ambassador Gibson in his statement on the difficulties of the Geneva conference, and he certainly made a good case for himself and his fellow Americans at Geneva. Mr. Gibson points to the fact that while the British talked about cutting down the size of guns and the size of cruisers she was insistent on increasing the actual tonnage of the cruisers to be maintained by each nation.

The British idea is of course easy to grasp. They have naval bases in all parts of the world many of them near America. From these bases they can replenish 6,000 ton cruisers and keep them effective. But for Uncle Sam, who does not possess these bases, 6,000-ton cruisers are inadequate, and if we were to agree to build them no longer our cruiser strength would be infinitely less than that of the British even if we had the same number of ships of the class.

What Uncle Sam needs, if he is to keep any cruisers at all is to have them of 10,000 tons burden with eight-inch guns. To say 6,000 ton cruisers with six-inch guns are defensive and that 10,000 ton cruisers with eight-inch guns are offensive warships is simply subterfuge. Either type can be used offensively or defensively. If two squadrons of smaller cruisers should get together they would be quite capable of destroying one another, or helpless merchant ships as the larger variety. The real point is that 6,000-ton cruisers are all right for John Bull with his supply stations all over the world but not so good for Uncle Sam.

The British assert this doesn't matter since there is no danger of our cruisers fighting the British cruisers anyhow as war between the two nations is impossible. But this argument is as good for one side as another. As Mr. Gibson well said:

"We find it difficult to reconcile the British conviction that war is already outlawed between us with their present unwillingness to recognize our right to build a limited number of the type of ships which we would desire, or with their unwillingness to risk the success of this conference because they fear the problematical possession by us during the life of this treaty of a small number of eight-inch gun cruisers."

The sound American has real reason for satisfaction in that the American delegates stood so firmly at Geneva against sacrificing American security and that they were so soundly supported in this course by the American government.

YOUR BIRTHDAY

AUGUST 30

Mr. Sam Ash was born on August 18, when the Goddess of Art and Song was merging her radiant rays with those of the Sun, and the Moon was merging her rays with those of Jupiter. It is therefore no wonder that Mr. Ash has achieved success. For three years he was the leading tenor of "Rose Marie" and is therefore well known to all lovers of the theatre. At the present time he is busy doing motion picture work on the Coast, which undoubtedly will add to his success and reputation.

Neptune, ruler of the pictures, was in trine both to Uranus and Mercury and was also on very friendly terms with Jupiter when Mr. Ash was born, so that the stars are certainly in his favor. They promise him success in any dramatic work, either on the stage or on the screen.

The blending of the vibrations of Mercury and Uranus give him an exceptionally quick grasp and understanding of the principles of art and unusual power of expression.

His musical talent is shown by the conjunction of the Moon with Jupiter in the sign of Cancer, a sign in which both the Moon and Jupiter are at their best. With such stars there can be no question as to Mr. Ash's continued success.

CUTEST THING BABY EVER SAID

Monday I took my son aged 4 downtown. Soon I noticed him hanging behind. "Come dear, we'll go in the rest station and sit on one of those nice, soft chairs," I said. Imagine my surprise when he answered, "But mamma, you know I like better them nice, hard, comy chairs in the ice cream store at the corner."

The Smartest Thing My Dog Ever Did

While standing on the pier at Rockaway with my pet dog seated beside me, a little tot came over to where we were standing with a beautifull little kitten in her arms. Before I had a chance to look at the kitten, she threw it into the water. Immediately my dog jumped in after it; grabbing it by the mane of the neck he brought it to shore safe and sound.

What Your FACE TELLS

C. 1927 - by Betty Morrison, Psy.D.

WHEN SHORT PHYSICAL WEDS TALL MENTAL

The progress of the human race depends on the constancy of the marriage vows, and marriage vows will be broken until people learn to recognize each other as individual types.

Too often people fall in love with an illusion, with a phantom man or woman who really does not exist. Here is the scientific mental type, man and his little "Dollie Dimple" wife, known as the physical type woman. She is the affectionate cuddler, who loves companionship, and who is miserable without it. When she wants to be cuddled, scientific husband is busy digging in the graves of "dead languages" or delving deep for more scientific truth.

As for the wife, she could not appreciate an Einstein, so his conversation goes "over her head." This type craves appreciation and grows bored without it. He is selfish and cold in his nature. His pleasures lie in the world of thought, of analysis, of criticism. Like many other husbands, he supplies fuel and clothing, but fails to bestow the attentions which bind love's tie.

Failure to keep up the little familiar practices after marriage, the live pat, the sweet kiss, the bouquet of flowers and the box of candy has resulted in many a broken home.

A "duty kiss" to his little wife is like a "huff" in the face with the broom. Her heart sinks low under the heavy monotony of housework unless she has the whole-hearted and affectionate encouragement of her husband.

The greatest need of this wife is an affectionate, attractive husband, a clumsy companion, who will pat her instead of criticizing her. The sweetest and dearest possession in any home is comeliness. Both the husband and wife must contribute to this. While this little woman is an affectionate cuddler, she has annoying faults. She is not the housekeeper who can please a fastidious man. She loves her babies and enjoys caressing them, but she is not the tidy mother, or the scientific one. Nor is she the intellectual.

Marriage can only be a success when it is an equal partnership; when folks join hands and go fifty-fifty down the road together. Many a person might have ascended to the pinnacle of happiness and financial success had he married the right type. Domestic troubles are easier avoided than cured. People should study the individuals they are going to wed. If they are not mentally and physically mated, they should not marry. Cages often look attractive and harmless until you are in them. Infatuation is often mistaken for love.

SAYS THE MAN

Dear Patricia Lee:

All my life I have longed for a home of my own and a little child. For ten years I worked sacrificed and saved until able to buy a pretty little home. Then I married the girl of my choice. Soon my wife developed an aversion to having children. I had no idea she felt that way, for we had discussed the subject beforehand. We did this because of a difference in religion, and she agreed that our children should be brought up in my faith. Now she says she would rather be dead than have a child. Why this sudden change, do you think? How can I make her see her duty? She claims she is afraid; that her mother nearly died when she was born, and has taught her not to want children.

WALTER W.

The mother who instills in her daughter's mind fear of maternity is making a sad mistake. Your wife needs to be re-educated, taught not to shun the utmost patience on your part. Perhaps by living the normal life of a wife and home-maker she can overcome this abnormal fear. Ask her if she actually feels unequal to the experience of untold billions for her sex. There may be other reasons than the one suggested.

It may be that she now regrets her promise that the child would bring up in your faith. It may be that she does not want to be married down, or that she is one in whom the maternal instinct is lacking. When the latter is the case, there is usually a psychological explanation—and the woman herself should not be blamed entirely in the matter. Think the things I have told you over, Walter, and it is told more than likely you will find the real reason.

With most women the desire for children is just as involuntary as breathing and sleeping, and the woman who deliberately turns her back on motherhood cannot but arouse surprise and pity. Walter, it is told more than likely you will find the real reason.

A letter: "A person who confesses great interest in you desires to know when you will be well enough to walk with her. Tomorrow a lackey will await your reply."

D'Artagnan at length drew along side the coach and heard Milady quarreling with a cavalier. This cavalier seems to have angered you," said D'Artagnan. "May I punish him for his lack of courtesy?"

ROD LA ROCQUE IN TITLE ROLE AT CALIFORNIA

"DRUMS OF THE DESERT" NOW AT RICHMOND

The stimulating vigor of Zane Grey stories plus an invincible spirit of romance that fires the imagination, make for genuine entertainment when they are transferred to the screen.

So it has proved with "Drums of the Desert" the latest of the Zane Grey's adapted from his "Desert Bound", which is now playing at the Richmond theatre. And, like most of the really worth while Zane Grey films, this is a Paramount picture, directed by John Waters, whose reputation has been firmly established by such production as "Man of the Forest" and "The Mysterious Rider".

While in one sense a sequel to "The Vanishing American" that classic of the American Indian "Drums of the Desert" is very much in the nature of a successor. It was made, we are told, in exactly the same locale. In the current production while the story is basically concerned with the Indians, in that the machinations of unscrupulous whites to obtain possession of the Indian oil lands afford the plot's menace, the action is seen through the eyes of the white principals. There is John Curry, friend of the Indians, who manfully endeavors to frustrate a conspiracy against them; and then there are Mary Manton and Prof. Manton, her father, innocent by-standers who are drawn into the vortex together with their companions, Gennifer Perkins and Hi-Lo.

Always in the background are the Indians, guarding their sacred altars from invasion.

Ford Sterling enacts his usual funny self while Wallace MacDonald, the heavy, is as effective as always.

Other features on the same program include "The Non Stop Bride" a comedy scream; and the latest Fox News reel.

mortal story; so he has made the ending logical—the ending of the book.

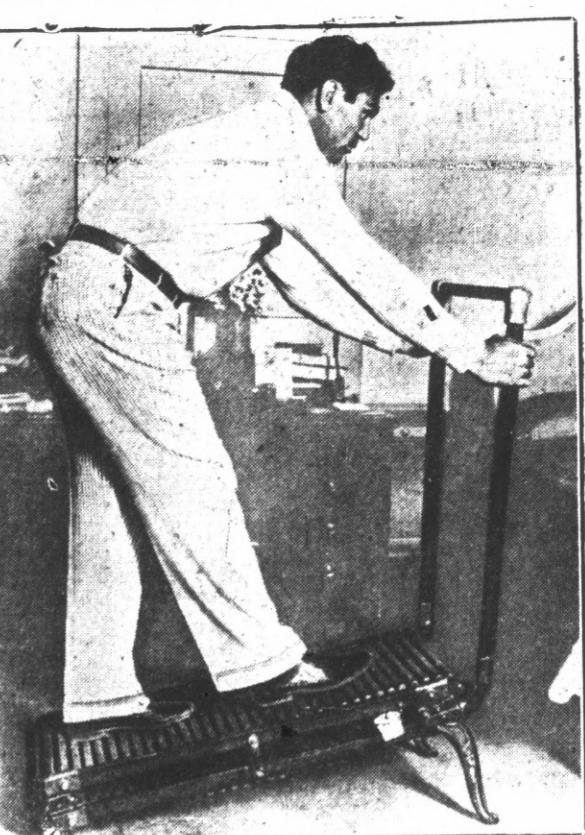

Among the supporting members of the cast are Marc McDermott, Vera Lewis, Lucy Beaumont, Clavissa Selwynne, Eve Southern and Count Ilya Tolstoy, who portrays his father, the author of "Resurrection" in a prologue to the film.

Other features include "Felix in Loco Motive"; "International News"; and Larry Caneo at the organ.

A little thing

THE power called habit is a little thing . . . but it can pull your eyes open at a certain hour every morning, determines whether you dress the right or left foot first; drop a fixed amount of sugar into your breakfast coffee—free your mind for thoughts that demand actual choice.

The little habit of glancing over these advertising columns daily, checking this and that which appeal to you, frees your mind from any guesswork about the merits of a product; helps you choose wisely when you buy. If you are familiar with advertisements, you can discriminate merits, weigh one product against another, these truths against those. And the habit of buying only advertised goods takes the hazard out of shopping; puts in a good, sturdy sure.

Plane Carriers Commissioned As Flagships Of Two Fleets

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
(Universal Service Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The United States' two new aircraft carriers and the most formidable ships afloat are to become the flagships of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets respectively, it was learned today. They are to be commissioned this fall and when they join the battle fleets of the two youngest and most progressive admirals in the navy will transfer their flags to them.

These admirals have been selected because of their knowledge of aviation as well as sea warfare and if necessary will direct a battle fleet from the air. It was learned, he names of the two commanding officers, as well as the staff they will take aboard with them are being withheld for the present.

At the same time it was learned that with the advent of these two monster ships the navy has determined upon a radical change in tactics and policy. The admiral is to abandon the slow-moving dreadnaughts, with its 20 knots an hour for the plane carrier with its 35 knots and the added advantage of directing the entire battle fleet from the air.

This apparently ends a dispute over the proper place, or position for an admiral with a fleet, which has agitated naval circles since the battle of Jutland between the British and German fleets in the world war. Traditionally it has been with the plodding battleship, with its powerful guns and heavy armor, the heart of the fleet.

But, as naval experts declare, this celebrated battle demon started that it is impossible for a commander to direct a fleet of such proportions approximately 500 ships were engaged—without getting an accurate picture of what is going on.

Instead of being in the center of the fleet, as he would be on a battleship, with cruisers and destroyers engaged miles in advance and being unable to reach decisions on the disposal of the various units, the admiral would view the field of action from afar and thus maneuver the ships to the best possible advantage.

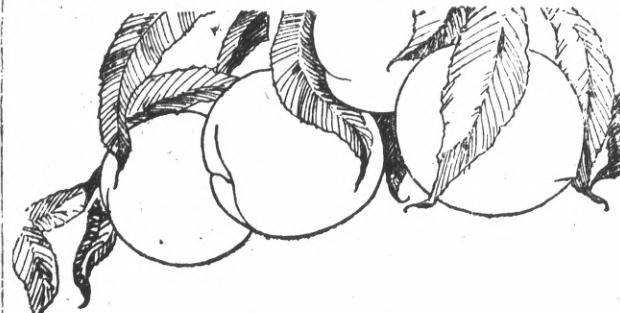

As a last minute change the interior of the two airplane carriers are being fitted up with quarters for admirals and an unusually large staff of experts. Special attention is being paid to radio communication between airplane and ship and the equipment is said to be the most modern ever installed.

VIERKOETTER WINNER OF CANADIAN MARATHON SWIM

GERMAN SWIMS 21 MILES IN 12 HRS. 42:12

TORONTO, (O.M.), Aug. 31. Ernst Vierkoetter, a powerful German baker who previously had conquered the English Channel, won the Canadian 21-mile marathon swim tonight. He covered the distance in 11 hours, 42 minutes and 12 seconds, winning $30,000 of the $50,000 prize money.

His time was announced as 11 hours and 45 minutes flat, but later was corrected, reducing it more than two minutes.

The throng that jammed the water front gave the German a tremendous ovation as he crossed the finish line more than two miles ahead of his nearest competitor, Georges Michel, of France, another baker who also had swum the English Channel.

Vierkoetter appeared comparatively fresh at the finish, despite the grueling grind in the cold water of the lake. After he crossed the line he held his hands high out of the water in a gesture of jubilation which the hundreds of boats let loose with their sirens.

Starting at 8:30 a. m. Eastern daylight time, Vierkoetter ploughed his way around the triangular course, took the lead from George Young, winner of the Catalina Channel swim and Toronto favorite, at the four and one-half mile mark and from then on was never headed. Young collapsed shortly after the German passed him.

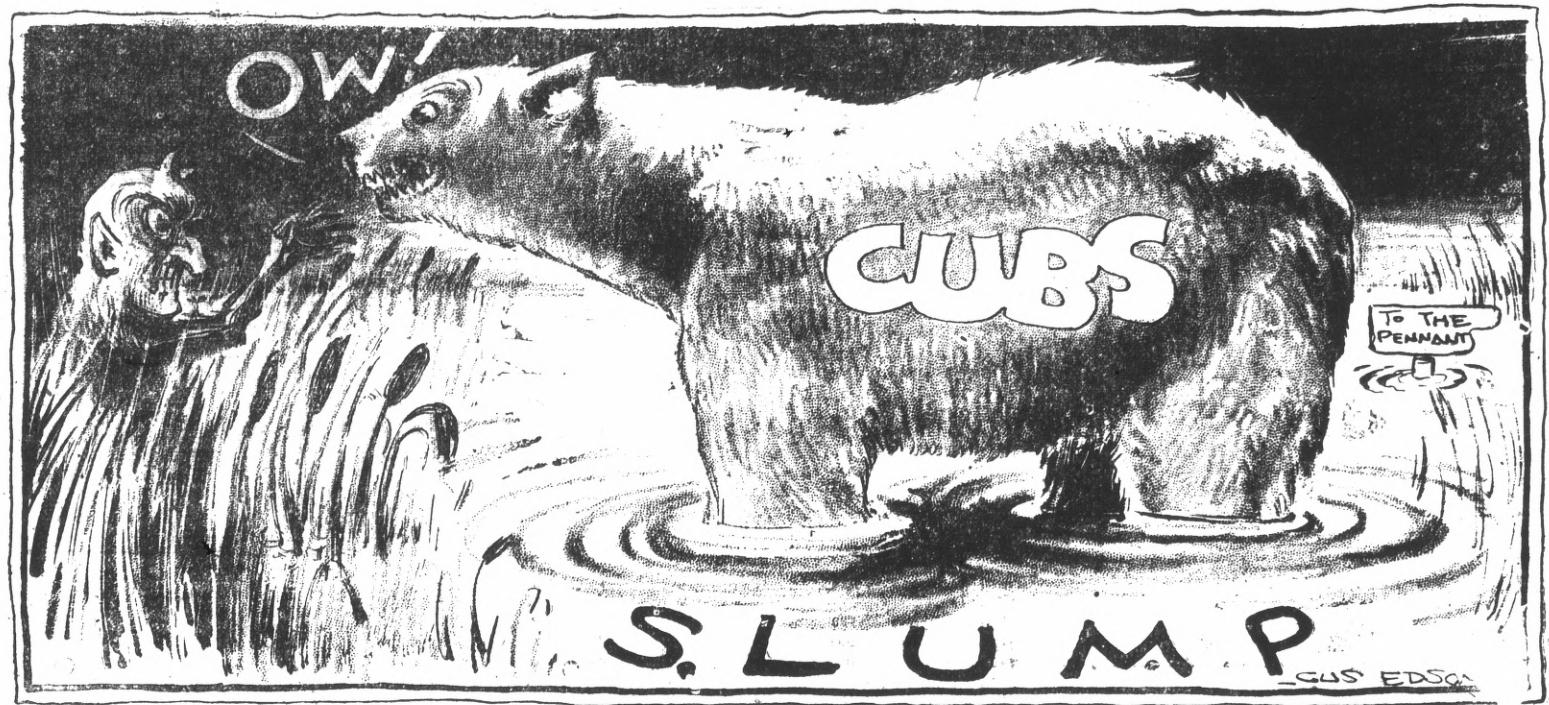

The forced withdrawal of Young, for whom today's classic was in the nature of an Ontario event of appreciation for his victory in the Catalina Island swim last winter, was the outstanding disappointment of a day packed with thrilling rescues from the steel-cold water.

"Dad, I can't stay in the race a hundred yards more. I'll kill myself," Young told his manager, and after a few moments of "swimming blind" the boy collapsed.

Vierkoetter, far ahead of the pack of swimmers, sped across the glistening lake course amid the cheers and hoots of his boatmen.

The battle in second and third places was not for miles, with the California "Flying Fish," Byron Summers, accompanied by a boat full of bandsmen, leading through the waters to the accompaniment of the most lively airs. At seven miles, his chief competitor, Edward Keating, New York, winner of the recent Lake George marathon, dropped out, and was supplanting by a Toronto racer, Mark Buddit. Summers held on steadily.

PLAN FISH AND GAME EXHIBITS FOR STATE FAIR

By while the change took place in the forgotten waters behind him, but soon after 2 o'clock, six hours into the water, Summers went out, band and all, and the race was on.

Eight hours after the start, check of the entrants showed only thirty-one swimmers still in the water, twenty being on the second lap, while eleven were still on their first seven miles. It seemed likely Vierkoetter would finish by 7 o'clock.

Arthur Compton, 14-year-old swimming ace of Long Beach, Cal., was taken from the water after he had completed fourteen miles. He was in third place.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—The message of conservation, protection and propagation of fish and game in California will be given to those who visit the State Fair at Sacramento, September 3rd to 10th, in an attractive and forcible manner according to advance announcements of the nature of the exhibits to be shown by the Division of Fish and Game of the Department of Natural Resources.

In addition to the comprehensive and illuminating exhibits shown last year, a third will show the need for awakened interest in protection of wild life. This exhibit is known as the "Forest Tragedy" and has been arranged by Captain Walter B. Sellmer of the Fish and Game Patrol Department.

It shows a beautiful spot in the forest, with a fallen doe and her two orphaned fawns, left to battle the elements without a mother's protection. The scene is being viewed with a sorrowful eye by a hunter who has happened upon the wantonly and illegally slaughtered doe, while in search of fish in the country, it is reasonable to assume that the showing will be one of the best ever displayed. Last year fully 250,000 visitors were impressed with the fish and game exhibits and it is freely predicted by officials of the Division of Fish and Game, as well as those of the fair, that a much greater number will be attracted this year.

SELLMER at the Marine County Fair last year, at San Rafael where it excited much favorable comment. It was later shown at Palo Alto and aroused so much interest that the hard working captain was persuaded to place it in the Fish and Game Exhibit at the State Fair. William G. Dabelstein, San Francisco artist, has been engaged to design and install the background and lighting effects for this exhibit, which it is the intention of the Division of Fish and Game to turn into a traveling exhibit to be shown throughout the State.

The exhibit of the Fishiculture department this year will be even more complete than ever. Against a scenic background will be shown all of the fish that frequent California waters. Troughs filled with fish from the state hatcheries will be shown and the fish and game aquaria will give close-ups of the many denizens of streams and other waters of the state. Fish may be traced from the baby stage to the point where they really excite the interest of the angler. As the exhibit is being arranged under the personal direction of W. H. Shebley, head of the Department of Fishiculture recognized as one of the best authorities on fishiculture in the country, it is reasonable to assume that the showing will be one of the best ever displayed. Last year fully 250,000 visitors were impressed with the fish and game exhibits and it is freely predicted by officials of the Division of Fish and Game, as well as those of the fair, that a much greater number will be attracted this year.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 31.—Authorities at Para estimate that it will take at least fifteen days to get replies from the other districts where the search is being conducted for Paul Redfern, missing American aviator, about whom a vague report was received from the Orinoco river.

In many of the districts there are no telegram facilities, and in some place the only means of getting word in and out is by canoe or boat.

Towns along the Amazon river have wire connections but along the Atlantic coast between French Guiana and the Brazilian frontier there are no telegraphs.

Reports from several states, however, indicate that all are anxious to assist in the search for the lost flier and every measure will be taken to find him.

Ferry Captain Gets Severe Burns From Standing Engine

Burned severely about the body by steam when an engine on which the cylinder cocks are reported to have been left open, started to leave the Southern Pacific ferry Contra Costa at Port Costa last night, Captain Lewis, ferrymaster, is in the Southern Pacific Hospital in San Francisco and according to reports received his condition is causing alarm.

The captain, master of the vessel for several years, was rushed to San Francisco by train.

Captain Lewis was burned shortly after piloting his ferry from the Benicia to the Port Costa dock. As he left his room a locomotive started. Lewis walked directly into the steam that poured from the cylinder cocks.

Voice Culture Told By Mrs. Conwell

A thorough course in elocution is being offered by Mrs. Jennie S. Conwell, of 448 Second street. From a long and practical instruction in the use and management of the speaking voice Mrs. Conwell believes that speaking is an art, and governed in principle as are music, painting and sculpture and mechanical acquisition in a larger degree.

"When properly pursued," says Mrs. Conwell, "elocution becomes an invaluable help to both youths and adults. It improves articulation and expression, teaches the proper methods of breathing and placing the voice in an easy and natural way. In learning to use the voice, nature's laws must not be violated."

The air ministry predicts that the journey of the St. Raphael will be made the whole way in good weather. Leaving the Irish coast the plane would, according to the air ministry reports, find fair weather over the ocean with the winds mostly northwest and changing to southwest in the vicinity of Newfoundland, where some fog will be encountered.

GIVEN BLESSING

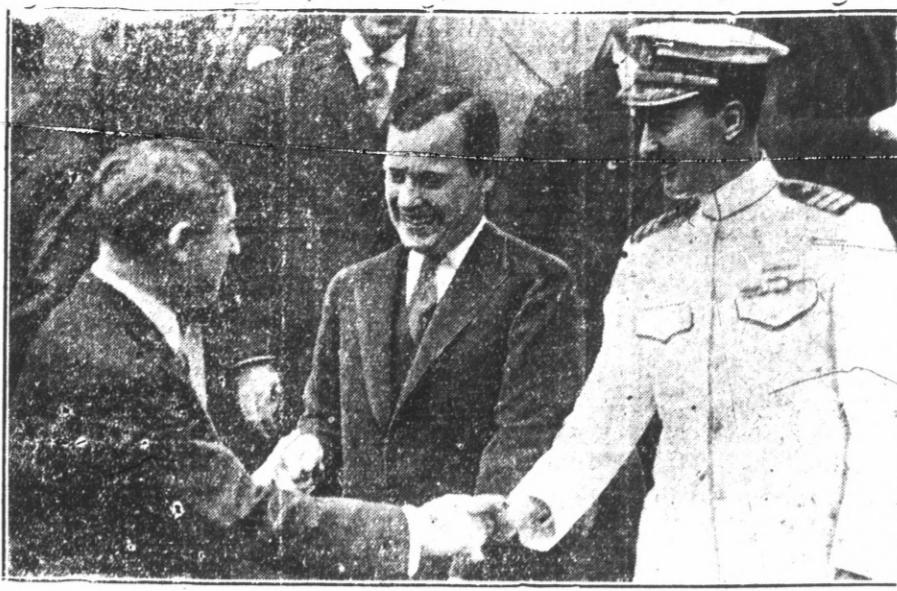

As the Fokker-Jupiter monoplane was all set to speed down the runway at Upavon Airdrome, the Archbishop of Cardiff gave his blessing to the party and held services under the spreading wings while a group of Royal Air Force officers stood with heads bowed.

Princess Louise-Wertheim knelt during the services.

The princess seemed highly elated at the opportunity to make the flight.

"COMMON-LAW" WIFE

Instead of becoming his housekeeper, the woman alleges, she actually became his common-law wife. During the 19 years she lived with him two children were born, Filmore, now 19, and Irene 18. Repeatedly, the woman declares in her complaint, Rudy promised both her and her mother that he would make her his legal wife, but he never did.

DAUGHTER ILL

On July 23, 1925, the complaint recites, Rudy abandoned the woman and the two children and married Mrs. Woolsey. She claims that because she gave nineteen years of her life to Rudy, she never learned any means of livelihood, and that she is compelled to scrub floors in order to support her daughter. The son is married and supporting himself, but the girl is chronically ill and unable to work, it is said.

The suit was filed by Attorney Guy R. McCoy of Oakland.
